SJC Sets Classes; OCC Ban Fought

Saddleback College officials find themselves in a whirlwind of activity planning for classes this fall and the next three years.

"Classes this fall are a certainty", explained Saddleback's Supt. Jack S. Roper.

"Future for the next three years depends on the forthcoming $9.5 million bond election April 9."

Supt. Roper gave these comments on the college's progress:

Classes will open in September, tentatively the 23rd, on an interim campus at Mission Viejo, located east of the San Diego Freeway and near the Crown Valley Parkway interchange. Relocatable buildings for the campus are now being studied.

A permanent campus location, in this general area, is in negotiation.

The Board of Trustees is asking the voter for authorization to sell $9.5 million in bonds for the purpose of financing acquisition of land, initial construction of the campus and equipment.

The request for this 20-year bond proposal goes before the voters April 9.

In a democratic manner, the Board of Trustees sought suggestions for a campus site from property owners throughout the district.

In several long public meetings these suggestions were studied. The Mission Viejo location was selected on a basis of outlined criteria to provide the district with educational excellence at a reasonable cost to the taxpayer.

Before the district was formed there were indications that land would be provided free to the district. After the Board of Trustees took office there was no offer. Trustees, however, hoping to find suitable land offered as a gift, investigated the report to no avail. To date the college has received no offer of a land gift.

Aside from the bond election, Supt. Roper noted that the college faces the dilemma of whether to open classes this fall for sophomore students.

Saddleback is tentatively going receive only freshman students the first year, however, Orange Coast College District has forwarded a notice of restriction to sophomore students living in Saddleback district. This results from a law forbidding Saddleback from paying $300 seat tax for each Saddleback student attending Orange Coast. Saddleback will be paying $600 for each student as an "education fee," but Orange Coast wants the full $900.

Since the county sets the tax rate on student attendance the previous year, Orange Coast College District will receive the approximate total of $900 for each student that has been attending its colleges, he said.

"The 1968-69 tax dollars will be going to them in the full amount," Supt. Roper explained.

Saddleback is currently trying to resolve this restriction at all levels, local and state.

"I'm optimistic about all aspects of Saddleback's future," Supt. Roper commented.

"The Crucible" Next Players Production

Rancho Community Players announce that the readings for their next production, "The Crucible", will be held March 25th and 26th, at 7:30 p.m. in the cafetorium of the Olivewood School in El Toro. Readings are open to all of Orange County regardless of experience. The cast calls for 11 men and 10 women, one woman being a negro.

Ages from teens on up are needed.

Arthur Miller, one of America's foremost playwrights, used the grim days of the Salem witch trials for the setting of "The Crucible". He brought into focus an issue that still weighs heavily on the progress of civilization-the problem of guilt by association. The balance has yet to be struck between order and freedom.

The play is being directed by Art Gordon, the founder of Rancho Players. He has had experience here and in La Puente, where he was very active with the the La Puente Players as set designer, technician, actor, and director. His directing credits include: "Diary of Anne Frank", "Who 'll Save the Plowboy", and "Twenty-seven Wagons Full of Cotton". He has appeared in "Roshomon", "Hatful of Rain", "Diary of Anne Frank", "Aria de Capo" and Guys and Dolls" and has appeared in several one act tournaments at Riverside. Art also directed the Rancho Players first entry in the Riverside Tournament last year.

"The Crucible" is his first full length production in Orange County. It will be presented at the end of May.

To reach the Olivewood School, take the Santa Ana Freeway south to El Toro Road. Turn left and follow the signs for "Cardinal Park". For further information, call Mrs. Curt Hammer at 837-0458.

EDITORIAL
Business People Should Contribute

Dear Business Man,

We want you the merchant and/or business man to take an active part in your community, for you are the leaders and can set the pace in attracting more families to move into this area. Your cooperation in the development of this community can mean great dividends in the months and years ahead.

Will it attract the kind of people that want to become a part of their community by contributing in their individual ways or will it become a transient type of living that has no roots. By this I mean, will these people not care enough to shop or spend their money locally, or will it (BY YOUR EXAMPLE) mean that they will want to help support their local business people because they have shown that THEY care.

Newspapers have surveyed this type of thing, and have found that the local business man can do much in developing the kind of community that prospers, simply by caring about the area in which they have their business.

I do not know how many of you live locally, but those of you who do, can increase your business by getting to know your city. Either through joining a local civic group or donating an hour or so a week in the sponsorship of little league or what ever might strike your interest.

I was born and raised in the city of Santa Ana and I can tell you that the local merchant and/or business man who contributed in its growth and planning were the most prosperous. Not just in a monetary sense, but in human growth.

The Rancho Reporter cares about the community and would like to see it grow into a solid stable family area that we all can be proud of.

We are the pioneers in this era of unrest, people picketing, youngsters getting hooked on dope, parents getting divorces, and we need to look to someone or something for stability. I honestly think it can be done in a small way right here in our area, with YOUR help.

Those of you who are already putting forth an effort in this direction are to be commended highly, but the business person who has not yet contributed, PLEASE take some time out and seriously think about what YOU can do.

Rare Book Sought For UCI Library

A rare book or manuscript worthy of becoming the 200,000th volume in the Library at the University of California, Irvine is being sought by the Friends of the UCI Library.

Friends president John Wright, said the volunteer support organization will present the volume on April 5 at site dedication ceremonies for a new library wing.

"The book should be one in which scholars and the citizens of Orange County would take pride," Wright said.

Previous donations to the UCI Library by the Friends have included 6,320 reels of microfilm and 40,313 units of other forms of microtext which includes the New York Times, the London Times, the Congressional Record and its predecessors, English Papers of the 18th Century and Periodicals to 1850.

Chapman's Floating Campus in Brazil

World Campus Afloat-Chapman College paid its second visit to Salvador (Bahia), Brazil, when the s.s. RYNDAM arrived March 17 for a two-day port stop.

The shipboard campus brought 385 students, representing most of the 50 United States and 200 colleges and universities, who joined local students, educators, civic and social representatives of the city to continue their studies while in port.

The spring semester study voyage left Los Angeles, Feb. 3 and has called at Lima, Santiago, Punta Arenas, Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Rio de Janeiro. Following its stop at Salvador, the shipboard campus will continue to ports in West Africa, Mediterranean Europe and Great Britain, returning to New York May 24.

On their first day in Salvador, in the company of local students, the visitors toured the major places of interest, including the Sao Francisco de Assis Church, the Third Order Cathedral, the place of the Fort and Church of Mont Serrat, the flower market, the Mercado Modelo and the Cave of Ladeira da Conceicao.

On Monday, history students participated with Brazilian history professors in an historical survey of Salvador, visiting the Fort of Sao Diego and the Monument to the Landing of Thome de Souza.

SJC Citizen Group Formed For Election

In an effort to get out the yes vote for the Saddleback Junior College District bond election April 9, a group of citizens met Thursday (March 7) to organize the Saddleback College Bond Committee.

The $9.5 million bond measure has been proposed to finance acquisition of land, initial construction of the campus and equipment.

"We want to inform the public of the low tax rate our district will be paying with approval of the bond proposal," the group stated in citing the purpose of the committee.

"The tax rate, with the bond proposal, will be about 20 per cent lower than the tax rate was when the district was formed."

It was stated that 13 cents for bonds would be added to the 40-cent operational cost for a total of 53 cents, the lowest the rate has been in recent years.

In attendance at the organizational meeting were Robert B. Malond, Laguna Beach; Arthur R. Scheele Jr., San Clemente; Carole A. Collins, Laguna Hills; Donna Berry, Mission Viejo; Harcourt G. Bull, San Clemente. Members of the group include Bill Moses, Tustin; Carl Venstrom, El Toro and Leonard Geesen, Leisure World.

Malone was named chairman of the finance subcommittee. Chairman of the executive board of the Saddleback College Bond Committee will be selected at the next meeting of the group March 12.

Local Taxpayer Winner in SJC Bond Election

Voters in Laguna Beach, San Juan Capistrano, San Clemente and Tustin will be handed two ballots April 9—but it means a savings.

The two ballots account for consolidated municipal and Saddleback College bond proposal elections.

Through the cooperation of the cities, the electorate will not have to go to different polling places to vote, said Saddleback College Supt. Jack S. Roper.

The taxpayers of the cities and college district save money also on employment of "consolidated" precinct workers, the Superintendent added.

Other voters in the 329 square mile college district will only have one ballot — that of the $9.5 million college bond proposal.

Purpose of the 20-year bond proposal is to finance acquisition of land and initial construction of the campus and equipment.

With approval of the bond proposal, the payment for bond redemption would not begin until the 1969-70 fiscal year, explained Supt. Roper.

On a declining scale, a 13-cent tax would be required the first two years for the 20-year proposal; the tax would then continue to drop.

This would mean a total tax rate of not more than 53 cents and perhaps less, Supt. Roper continued.

A breakdown of the 53-cent rate shows 40 cents for operational costs and 13 cents for bond redemption.

The Rancho Reporter is pleased to announce that Captain Peters of the California Highway Patrol has informed us that the La Paz Ambulance Service has been placed on their call list.

TAX TIPS

A tax tip from the California Society of Certified Public Accountants . Something to watch for on your personal Federal Income Tax return.

"NEW" SENIOR CITIZENS TAKE NOTE

Tax rules provide a number of ways to cut your total tax bill if you or your spouse is over 65. These are especially easy to miss since they were of little interest before reaching age 65. Therefore many taxpayers have grown accustomed to glossing over such dollar-saving provisions as:

* An extra $600 personal exemption for each spouse 65 or older.

* Possible qualification for the "Retirement Income Credit" which can reduce the tax bill of a married couple by over $450.

* Social Security benefits, which usually start at age 65, are not taxable income.

Make sure you don't miss these benefits in preparing your 1967 returns, and take a look at returns for prior years to see that you haven't overpaid. If you have, a refund can be obtained by filing a claim within three years of the original filing date.
